TUNNEL VISION

YOUR BI-WEEKLY SOURCE ON THE RPI UNDERGROUND

Happy Halloween!

By I

BOOOOO! Did I scare you? Hope you all had a great Halloweekend! You should be careful of ghosts, they could be anywhere! This issue, we're going to be focusing on some interesting PCs, a certain JEC-DCC tunnel whose paper has been removed, and other things around campus! Also, our very first sponsors have arrived, huge thank you to GZ Basement for helping support our work and printing of Tunnel Vision, you can have a look at our new ad page tucked neatly in Tunnel Vision. Finally, WNITB has had a facelift! Let us know what you think!

JEC slows down, LOW picks up the slack

By I

Over the past 2 weeks, it's been slow. Except for yesterday (and a few days ago), that is. The JEC slowed down considerably with interesting/useful stuff, and the other tech dumps followed suit (or stayed the same), for the most part. That is until LOW got graced with 2 full boxes of 2000s and older PCs. And it got even better yesterday with a single box with lots of goodies!

Tunnel Paper down; StuGov working on putting it back

By I

Oh well. As of October 26th, the tunnel paper was fully gone from the tunnels. Asking the GM, it still appears unknown who took the paper down and for what reason. All we do know is that Student Gov is working on getting replacement paper back up. We've got some photos of some art that we haven't had a chance to show yet, so be sure to check out some of the last photos of drawings we took before the paper went down.

Halal Shack, Bird N' Brine, Jimmy Johns to close

By I

Okay, this was not expected. Around Nov. 1st, it came to our attention that this was happening. How are people reacting? Find out on page 4!

The Best Years for Parties

By JSL

Old age need not deter you! I had a really fun Halloween, and I wasn't really expecting it going in, since most of the friends I went with last year graduated like I was supposed to. Luckily I still had a group, a plan, and some material for a decent costume this time around, and it was worth it to still go out. There's no secret to getting into the best parties, but I can certainly share what I know about them.

It's ALIVE!

By JSL

Obituary not required. I've brought a laptop back from the dead. Since I don't think we've gone over the process of restoring tech-dumped tech in a while, I figured this would be a good time to bring that back too.

WHAT'S NEW IN THE BOXES

New Look! EDITION

Yeah, it's that time of year again. The time in which the tech dumps slow down. You gotta be more vigilant, and work harder for the good stuff, but it's definitely in there. Take, for instance, the FOTW, of which there are 2! Or, the other photos you can glean over below. Also, posters like the one below have been put up in the JEC and DCC, collecting ratings. Not by us, but definitely worth a look! Finally, what do you think about the new facelift? Let us know!

FIND OF THE WEEK

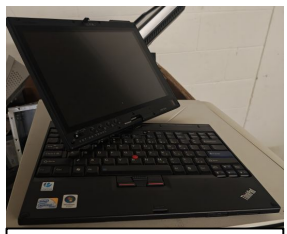

It's always surprising to see the tech dumps provide yet even more old tech. This time in LOW, it was a treasure trove! It was tough to pick the FOTW this time, from MAC OS X, to many old laptops and PCs, to plenty of random things you would never expect to see! Unfortunately, the Mac OS X was CIB, except the disc itself, but all the manuals and stuff were pretty cool to see! As for the laptop, it may be THE oldest laptop I've seen here, complete with a hard-wired power button, a floppy drive, physical brightness/contrast adjustment, a trackball, AND the clickiest mouse buttons you'll ever use! Not to mention that numpad by the mouse. Cool stuff this time around!

One of the posters put up lately (not by us), looking for tech dump ratings, as well as cool stories. Check it out next time you're at the DCC or JEC tech dumps!

A power strip more hole-y than swiss cheese, you could probably power a city with that many outlets!

Fear not, this screen is not mangled, it's the glorious ThinkPad X200 tablet!

(right) This scale, marked 'confidential,' has the CURRENT mail postage prices (that is if it's July 1995)!

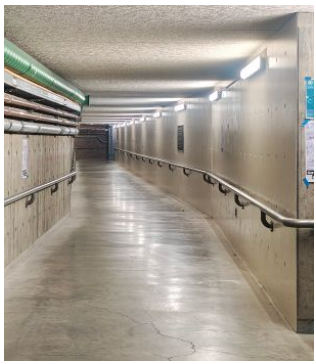

LOW	JEC	VCC	Other
Lots of PCs, a fresh 2 overflowing boxes' worth! Plus the bargain bins.	Slowed down, but still providing. A huge power strip which might burn down your house.	Some action here too!	AAH!!!

Out of Tunnel Edition

Well, that was unexpected. The paper in the tunnels has been removed since last issue. It's a mystery why this could have happened, but the results are clear: Where there is wall there is draw. It's unclear why the paper was taken down, but according to the GM, they are currently working on getting it back up, so stay tuned for updates!
In any case, check out some of our back-collection of JEC-DCC paper art and from other locations on campus!
In other news, there's been some interesting posters/developments outside the tunnels, check those out below as well!

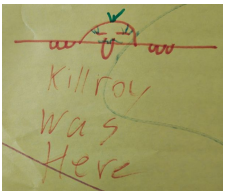

The tunnels, barren once more (of paper at least)

Uh, meow?

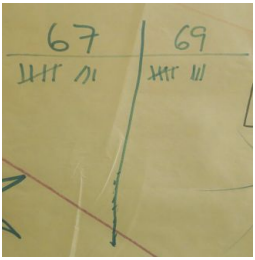

Never thought I'd see a REAL throne in the throne room! How majestic.

Kilroy was here! Another sighting of one of the oldest memes known to man.

(Right) GAWRSH, didn't mean to surprise you like that, my bad! (This gem was found in a JEC stairwell for those curious)

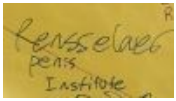

Is 67 or 69 better? The world may never know… Tied at 8 before the paper was removed..

(Left) Hey, I remember this flower from the tunnels, once upon a time!

Is this the secret meaning of RPI they don't want you to know about?

What a beautiful smile! I see no other possible interpretations of this!

Tunnel Vision: Out of the Tunnel - Are Halal Shack, Bird N' Brine, and Jimmy John's on the way out?

By I

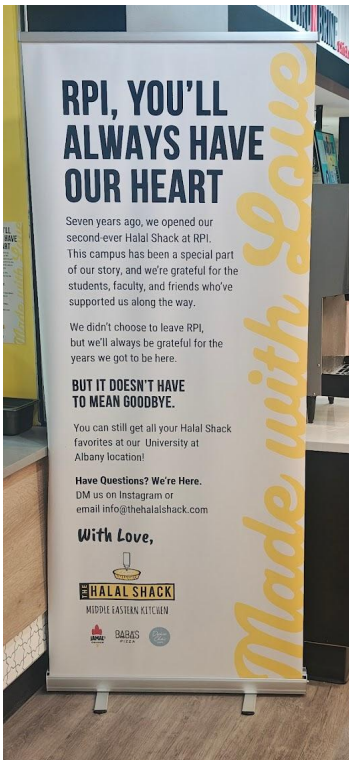

On November 1st, a post on the r/rpi subreddit urged users to sign a petition to stop the closure of Halal Shack, Bird N' Brine, and Jimmy John's from the Union to replace it with a local restaurant, Pita & Olive. This appears to have been first made public by Halal Shack, shortly before the change.org petition was advertised on the subreddit.

There was enough of a chatter around this that the Grand Marshal sent out a mass email asking for opinions on November 3rd. A Google form is available in this email to submit your opinion, so if you feel so inclined, be sure to check your email!

Meanwhile, on the subreddit, the reactions have been mixed.

Some were against this change, citing the fact that there would be less options to choose from, as well as just the fact that the main dining area on the 1st floor would now only have 1 open location to choose from (plus Wild Blue).

Others, supporting this, added that Pita & Olive are not in fact affiliated or managed by Sodexo, they're a local restaurant to Upstate NY. Additionally, most of the food options would remain, as Pita & Olive reportedly have most of the same food options. This includes Halal, vegetarian, and vegan options. While this change would also increase prices for some items slightly, however, the food would, again, not be managed by Sodexo.

Reportedly, the marketing manager at Halal Shack also responded to this post, saying "Leaving RPI wasn't our choice, and we genuinely wish we could stay. We're grateful for the past seven years and everyone who supported us along the way." While the account cannot be confirmed, a similar statement was made on a banner in the Union (see right).

Additionally, a member of the student senate (also reportedly), outlined many details and concerns that were talked about in a recent Student Senate meeting which went into more detail about this proposal.

There's numerous sides to this debate, and it seems it's just gotten started. If you want to be an official part of it, be sure to check the email from the GM, or, according to the member of the Student Senate, "Reslife and Dining (student advocacy) meets Wednesdays at 6 in the SGS (RU 3120) and there has been a channel created in the stugov discord." We'll keep you updated as we find out more information on this!

The Best Years for Parties

By JSL

How was your Halloween? Seriously, if you're on our Discord server, I'd love to know how our average reader spends the holiday. Mine was awesome, and unlike anything I ever expected.

Firstly, the pre-party we went to was at my old apartment from two years ago! I recognized it as soon as my friends sent me the address. Absolutely bizarre and appropriately haunting to see my old room almost exactly as I left it. I felt like a real ghost.

Following that, though, I felt as alive as ever on the party scene. Not sure if I should say where I went in case PubSafe happens to read our ever-so-mainstream paper, but I will proudly say that I'm friends with the wizards.

And friends are both what'll get you into parties and what you should get out of them. There's no big secret to it. Treat parties like networking events! It's a great way to make connections and have a good time with new people, so even if you're not the biggest party person, step out of the tunnel and try it sometime!

If this is the last party I have time for in my last semester, I'll take it.

Random News (hell yeah)

By I

Welcome back to Random News (hell yeah)!

You can't make this stuff up. Right around the time when we released the last issue, you'll never guess it, the DCC-JEC walkway once again closed. BUT, recently it has reopened… again. This is now a PSA, be sure to time your dash across the walkway right or you might be stuck for an indeterminate amount of time between the DCC and JEC!

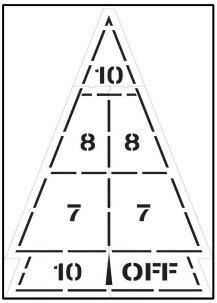

In other news (not sponsored), the battle of the bands is happening on November 6th at 7 PM in the Union!! The bands doing the battling, according to the UPAC Instagram page are Entropy, UTA, Incoherent State, Subhuman, Pseudosky, and Wishbone. If you're available then, be sure to check it out, always a blast!

In other other news, wonderful weather we've been having, huh? With a high of 74 on Nov 4th and a recent bout of warm weather before that, it's been a pretty smooth October, temp-wise. I apologize in advance if I jinxed it just now.

Finally, we might be having a new writer join us soon! Get yourself ready for some real news in a Tunnel Vision near you!

That's it for today, hope you enjoyed this edition of Random News (hell yeah), we'll see you next time!

Extra: Revived VivoBook

By JSL

Last year I found a tiny (like, 10.1") Asus VivoBook in the Cogswell tech dump.

Last week I bought a new battery for it, installed Linux Mint, and voilà! It's actually functional.

If you're as behind as I am on Linux, this could be how you save a tech-dumped computer yourself! There's only so much to do with Windows 8, after all. Looking forward to doing more with this machine now.

Your ad could be here too! It's free!
