

TUNNEL

VISION

YOUR BI-WEEKLY SOURCE ON THE RPI UNDERGROUND

We're back again!

By I

Seems like we're back again, folks! Bit of a delay, but welcome to the third, yes, third semester of Tunnel Vision, and happy Groundhog Day!! Hope you watched the movie, I know I sure did! Anyway, we're excited to get back into it, and there are lots of upcoming plans! Most immediately, thanks to Kris for the updated front page layout!!

In other news, we are looking for more help! Read more on Page 6!

Hope you all had a great break, good luck in the upcoming semester!

What's new in the boxes

What is that thing?

By I

Under all that random stuff could be a cool thing you've never seen before. You may be wondering, ~~what is that thing?~~ Well, surely ~~someone's~~ gonna know. You'll never know 'till you ask!

Read on to get the find of the week, the NEW section, and a quick tech dump recap from since break to 1/23!

...READ MORE ON PAGE 2!

State of the Art

Pretty Cool Posters (PCP)

By I

Posters are a campus mainstay. What would a college campus be without its posters? That's why we're starting a new section, Pretty Cool Posters, to highlight the posters YOU voted best of the past 2 weeks! Also, we're continuing coverage as normal from last semester. Hope you enjoy!

...READ MORE ON PAGE 3!

Tunnel Vision:
Out of the Tunnel

Greene Building

By West Virginia

Everyone, I hope you had a good break! Welcome back. I hope you weren't gone long enough to forget our little project! We will be continuing to try and rank all the water fountains on campus and for this first edition back we'll be beginning with the Greene Building...

...READ MORE ON PAGE 4!

Subterranean Homesick Blues

sickboyrrari
City of DovesS

By I

Recent studies show that participants become happier the less choices they are given. For less then the price of the Apple Vision Pro@ you too can forfeit your will to our innovative AI model "Dodeca-Link." This hyper intuitive model will be directly installed to your prefrontal cortex allowing you to sit back and relax while we take care of the busy work of your day to day.

...your first order is to read my review on PAGE 5!

Extra

What happened to the house by the garage?

By I

By the parking garage once stood a little house. You may not have even noticed it. But it's stood there for decades. What happened? We looked into it!

...READ MORE ON PAGE 6!

QUESTIONS, COMMENTS, NEWS, CONCERNS?

Go to the website below OR the QR code (it's a google form) to the left to submit that and more!

It can be anonymous!

tunnelvisionweekly.github.io

WHAT'S NEW IN THE BOX(ES):

V3.0 EDITION

1/12-24/26

Hey all, welcome back to the one and only What's new in the Box(es)! This semester we've got a bunch of ideas for you all, excited to get going on semester #3 of this section!

If you're here for the recap, there's been a lot of things in the JEC, mainly, but overall really not much. The JEC saw a ton of random metal boxes and electronics and stuff. There was a case of probably 100 (seemingly unused) DVD-R's also at some point, but besides that the tech dumps have been relatively quiet, mostly the same as they were before break, bit of a bummer. In any case, read on to discover a brand new (experimental) section!

NEW SECTION: whatisthisthing?

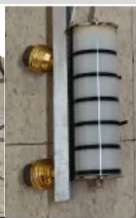

Welcome to a brand new section I has thought of over break! Do you have something you've seen in the tech dumps but have no idea what it is? Do you know of many obscure things that may be thrown out in the tech dumps? If you said yes to any of these questions, this is the section for you!

While supplies last, we'll share photos of mysterious things we or one of you saw recently. The first person to correctly tell us what it is gets a sticker or a message in the next Tunnel Vision!

This time around might be easy if it's still in the DCC tech dump. It's got a name: Paul. A bunch of 'Paul' branded equipment showed up, all seemingly able to interconnect. What is it? Email us and if you can identify it and how it was used, you win! Bonus points for pictures of it in action. Check out full-color photos on our website. Good luck!

Find of the (bi)Week:

This edition's find of the (bi)Week is technically technology, but not really the kind you would expect to see in a tech dump, let alone the JEC tech dump. A stack of ~30 vinyl records, some ~100 years old, was found on 1/12! Lots of children's music, too. Maybe the JEC used to be a daycare?

What's actually new in the box(es):

JEC: Full of stuff up until 1/22 or so, metal boxes galore!

MRC: Mostly the same, though a Xerox printer was there for a while, too.

Union: Pretty empty, a few network switches and a printer.

DCC: The whatisthisthing for the fortnight, plus a huge PC case.

Sage: A printer was there, and a bunch of random wires most recently.

Low: Bunch of flat screens recently, plus some more random printers and stuff like that. Recently another shipment of all the boxes from around campus were found here, all were removed roughly around 1/27.

View more photos on our website!

Find something cool? Did we miss something? Do you want to help write for this section? Email us at tunnelvisionweekly@proton.me!

STATE OF THE ART. PCP ANNOUNCEMENT EDITION

Hey all, it's that page again! State of the Art, your most trusted news source, and display of public works. Hope you're ready for more art and more news! Also, we're looking for captioners! If you think you have what it takes to caption, shoot us an email! We're open to receiving photos of drawings for submission, as well! Plus, we're starting up a new sub-section: Pretty Cool Poster (PCP) of the (bi)Week! We're going to highlight your top voted poster of the past 2 weeks, depending on how many posters are put up, and votes are cast, that is. Plus, we'll keep doing what we've been doing last semester, hope you enjoy the first State of the Art since break!

YOUR poster could be here! Submit a photo of your favorite poster to us using the form, the poster with the most votes/submissions wins!

Be careful out there! Tons of (totally) wild animal tracks have been seen on EMPAC hill lately!

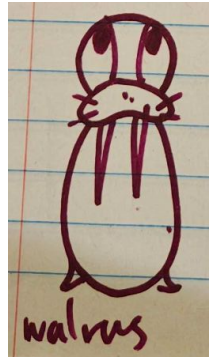

Need I say more?

Pretty Cool Poster (PCP) Of the week (hopefully soon to be)!

Hey! There could be something under the DCC steps, perhaps a powerup?

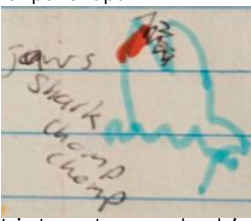

This Just In: Local Walrus Arrives Late For Class

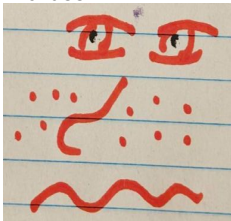

The vending machines are always watching...

Could it be... A crop-er, snow circle? Is this a sign aliens caused the snowstorm? What does it mean, what does it mean?!

Listen to a shark's inspirational words: "jaws shark chomp chomp"

Study theorizes Freckles really do exist (on paper)

Snowmen Become Sentient in '86 Field

Walking by the '86 Field after the recent snowstorm may have been more dangerous than you think. It was reported that 2 snowmen came alive and started building themselves a snow fort. Their life came from a surprise Frosty the Snowman appearance during the storm, something not seen for decades at RPI.

Unfortunately, the snowmen were angry, and a tough police battle ensued, until finally they were literally disarmed. Frosty is now at large, we ask you to keep a lookout for him the next time it starts snowing.

See Full-color Images on our website (soon)!

TUNNEL VISION: OUT OF THE TUNNEL

THE GREENE BUILDING

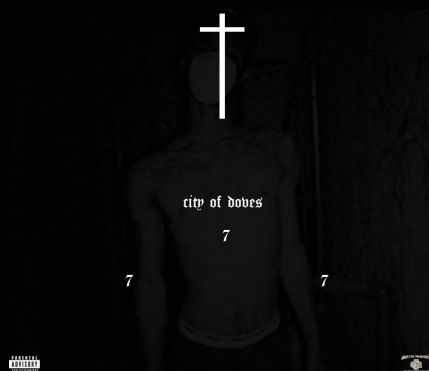

The Greene Building, chances are if you're not an architecture student you haven't spent much time here. Don't get too thirsty while inside, they have very few water fountains. A quick sweep of the building left me coming up empty waterbottled (if you'll allow me the wordplay). Continuing my search, I went to the office on the main floor to see if someone could direct me to a source of water. I was directed to the staff kitchen across the hall where I was greeted with a water bubbler(Left). The bubbler itself dispensed chilled filtered water with an option to dispense hot water as well. An ideal situation for water bottle refilling, but not for those who are just looking for a quick sip of water. Its unique location within the staff kitchen also means that it resides behind doors that remain locked once the office closes on weekday evenings and all weekend. I'm only mentioning this dispenser to inform you of its existence but know that it will be excluded from our official consideration of the best water fountain. As for the relevant fountains in the building you're left to choose between two options. The front entrance to the Greene Building opens to the landing between the first and the main (second) floor. If you head downstairs to the first floor you'll find the first real water fountain (Right) a short way down the hall to your left. This fountain earned a poor on the temperature scale and barely earned an acceptable on water pressure and water bottle compatibility. Location and Flavor both earned an outstanding. Journeying upstairs to the fourth floor, on your left you'll find the only other water fountain in the building. While it resides unobstructed along the hallway on your left (while facing away from the main stairwell) its outdated design and muted color makes it easy to miss entirely. Earning an outstanding in both temperature and flavor, a good in water pressure and location and acceptable on water bottle compatibility. This was the winning fountain (middle).

Subterranean Homesick Blues

-π

Sickboy'rari's City of Doves unfolds like a fog-drenched dream drifting through empty streets at dawn. Its production is beautiful, bleak, and heavy with unspoken weight. The record is woozy, almost understated sometimes. Atmosphere, leaning into ghostly synths, muted trap percussion, and melodies that ebb in and out rather than being tied down by a structured chorus.

Rari's voice is the anchor and the apparition at once. Slurred, Auto-Tuned, and emotionally distant, it glides across the production with a sense of detachment with intentional carelessness. He's drugged out delivery makes his perspective feel less like a solid recollection but a dreary hypnogenic vestige of his memories. His delivery never forces attention; it invites the listener inward, into a private world of loss, paranoia, and spiritual unrest.

The album's themes orbit loneliness, addiction, faith, and the hollowness of material success. Designer labels, street mythology, angels, and demons blur together into a single language of excess and regret. Rari catalogs his pain, painting with texture over sputtering high hats each fading memory of his life of excess. There's a quiet desperation beneath the surface, a sense that every track serves more as meditation rather than a proclamation.

Production throughout City of Doves remains restrained and immersive. Beats pulse softly, often dissolving before they fully assert themselves, creating a floating sensation that mirrors dissociation. The music rarely peaks; instead, it drifts, allowing sadness and introspection to stretch out and linger. The album is icy cold, the space between Rari and his production reflects the dissonance between Rare and his environment

By the end, City of Doves, like a lot of the best hip hop projects, entrances you into Rari's state of mind. It captures the ache of existing between worlds: fame and anonymity, faith and nihilism, numbness and excess. A pioneer in his sound with a project that serves a rosetta stone for trap music of the last decade.

Special Report: Tunnel Vision is looking for help!

The dream for Tunnel Vision would be to make it a completely community-driven source of news, for all sorts of things around campus. We want to try and expand the community reach and variety of news we provide you, and we can only do it with your help!

Are you interested in something? Enough to write about it (even a paragraph or 2)? We want to read it, and publish it!

We're asking if any of you would like to help us run Tunnel Vision, be it...

- CAPTIONING STATE OF THE ART!
- Keeping track of the tech dumps!
- Writing your own mini section (Could even be a paragraph or photo, about pretty much anything)!
- Are you a guru of something with information to share and questions to answer? We've got space!
- Want to write a continuing story? Let's do it!
- Want to make a recurring comic? Contact us!
- Peer editing
- Distributing and/or printing
- Public Relations/Website
- OTHER JOURNALISM AROUND CAMPUS
- Plus pretty much anything else you can think of!

If you're interested in any of this, please let us know via the form on the front page or email at tunnelvisionweekly@proton.me. Help us make Tunnel Vision yours with your contribution today!

If you know anybody who'd be interested, let them know as well! We hope to work with you!

(Also, if you want to place an ad and help support Tunnel Vision printing, also contact us!!)

Extra: What happened to the old building by the Garage?

-By I-

At what point does a building deserve to be acknowledged? This is the question I found myself asking after the building that once stood on 95 College Ave. was torn down over break. It was the building by the RPI parking garage, all ornate and old-looking. Turns out it was very close to being the oldest building on campus! I would not be surprised if you haven't seen it though, it was a pretty small building. Not to mention the fact that RPI has no mention of this building anywhere on its websites or campus maps.

This building, according to the Times Union, stood for around 111 years, standing on RPI campus for at least 50-70. Built initially for a businessman's estate in the late 1800s/early 1900s by architect Alexander Jackson Davis, it was relocated off of the site of where Prospect Park is now sometime during the parks' creation.

Around November 2025, an orange plastic construction fence was placed around the structure, as it had been condemned due to structural failures. They were pretty visible, a side wall was pretty heavily bowing out. Then, over winter break, it was completely torn down, leaving only dead grass in its wake. What's unfortunate is preservationists in Troy had been trying to save the building for some time now, with RPI doing nothing to fix up the building. By the time it was condemned, it was reported that it would cost over $1,000,000 to fix back up.

On a post on the r/RPI subreddit, people shared their dismay of the demolition, one saying they were 'heartbroken,' with others also voicing their unhappiness over this change. Some speculated what happened to it, with a leading theory being the RPI nuclear engineers had a bit of an oopsie. Another theory is that someone ate it. Who knows for sure? It happened over break, after all.

The demolition of the small gatehouse on 95 College Ave. was done without much mention of its impending removal, the final nail in the coffin for a building that sat unacknowledged for decades. It's a landmark that probably thousands of students have seen on their way to classes or cars, and yet RPI hasn't made any mention of its removal. At least an email could have been nice.

PUZZLES N' STUFF

Enjoy the classic game of newspaper shuffleboard above!

Welcome back to the greatest game show available, the Tunnel Vision contest box!

If you want to be on the Puzzles n' Stuff Hall of Fame, and a message in the next edition, email us the best stick figure you can draw! Bonus points for creativity.

11		12	15	13	65
9				10	40
5		3		1	15
25	24	22	25	24

Number Nonogram: The bottom and right indicate sums. Use each number, 1-15, only once!

Number nonogram #9!

ACROSS

- 1 Part of HASS
- 4 Lonesome freshman dorm
- 6 Thinly spread a substance
- 8 Person who commits a crime
- 9 Phi Kappa Theta

DOWN

- 1 V-shaped func.
- 2 A now 6-month construction project near JEC
- 3 These lined the '86 Field for a few weeks before winter break
- 5 "Listen up!" [archaic]
- 7 Second happiest college in the US, according to an AI analysis of Instagram photos

Want to see anything else? Have other suggestions? Drop 'em in the suggestion form from the front page!

Last but not least, the credits! Thank you to everyone who made issue #14 possible!

I, Founder

West Virginia, Tunnel Vision: Out of the Tunnel

Pi, Subterranean Homesick Blues

JSL, Website Maintainer

CORRECTION: Whistler, for this issue's mini crossword!

Kris, Cover layout and logo designer!

... And finally you for picking up and reading this edition of Tunnel Vision, hope you enjoyed! We'll see you on 2/16 for issue #15!